FIRE TRAPS 200 IN A TENEMENT: SIXTEEN INJURED

Four Persons Burned and Twelve Otherwise Hurt

Lena Barberette, nineteen, daughter of Cologera, burned about the body. McCloud stamped out the fire and first and second floors got to the streets with embers falling on them as they ran. Escape by the stairs was out off above the second floor, and when the sleeping tenants heard the cries of 1770 NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 27.—City and ran to the hall they were driven park back by flames. Then there was a mad as for rush for the fire escapes.

Engine No. 33, in charge of Capt. Hughes, which is located in Great Jones fire-fighter of the department, was the first to get to the fire. By this time the front and rear escapes were filled. many of the men fighting back the women and children in the effort to save themselves. Then came Engine Company, No. 25, Capt. O'Connor,

With scaling ladders three firemen, Ayers, Hoffman and Boltz, went up the burning tenement walls like flies and began disentangling the fighting. screaming and half mad men and women. More than one man who was playing the coward was felled by a fireman's

Young Fredericks, who had climbed to the escape on the first floor, also had his hands full saving lives and fighting back the men. Firemen on the escapes above handed to Fredericks a dropped them into the arms of policemen and firemen. Policeman Joseph O'Brien, of the Fifth street station, had lot of bedding, which some tenant was ent on saving came down on his head. O'Brien was carried to the street, and his right leg so badly hurt he had to be taken home.

The firemen had the greatest difficulty in clearing the escapes. Every landing was full of household effects, which wheir owners seemed to prize almost e highly as they did their lives or the lives of their children. Threw Baby and Jumped.

In the rear the same difficulty was his brother, Albert, and Alexandro Ciralongo were caught on the top escape by these crowded landings, and all were severely burned before the firemen could make a way for them to get to the ground.

Mrs. Annie Mastrungo also found it impossible to climb past trunks and boxes. She carried in her arms Charles D'Arco, five years old, and when she saw she could go no further called to Fireman Post.

"Here, catch this!" and the next instant had tossed the child from the ladder. Post caught the boy and handed him over to another fireman just as the woman jumped. The woman was heavy, and had made a thirty foot leap, but the fireman broke her fall, and she was not badly hurt.

Four Were Cut Off.

The house was thought to have been cleared when one of the firemen saw Barberette, his two sons and daughter on the top floor. Their clothes and hair had been burned off, and the father and sons were supporting the girl, who was unconscious. Ladders were quickly raised and the four were brought to the street and taken over to a restaurant, where they were treated by Drs. Mc-Nabb, Wall and Clark from Bellevue Hospital. Later they were taken to the hospital.

On the theory that the fire was of Incendiary origin the Fire Marshal and police have begun an investigation.

ROCKEFELLER'S LETTER A SECRET AT HEARING.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 .- Competitive rates was again the subject discussed to-day at the hearing of the suit of the Government against the Standard Oil Company for the annulment of the company's charter. E. N. Wootten, of Atianta, Ga., who for several years was manager for an independent oil company in the State of Georgia, continued his testimony as to the methods pursued by the Standard in "breaking down" the competition of independent concerns. On cross-examination Mr. Wootten said he was unable to fix any specific instance of price cutting on the part of the Standard in any specific year during the three or four years covered by the examination. Witness testified that he wrete to John D. Rockfeller, sr., President of the Standard, concerning certain things, but the letter was not in-troduced in evidence and witness was bet permitted to say what it contained.
